A New Buzz

A new year is right around the corner.

With 2023 approaching, so are the daunting resolutions and lifestyle changes we can never keep. Good news. Keeping New Year's resolutions afloat includes the launch of several new non-alcoholic bars & bottle shops across the country. With ingredients that boost feelings of euphoria, confidence (and socialization), non-alcoholic beverages offer a new kind of buzz.

Light The Way

"You Need to Update Chrome, Windows, and Zoom Right Now"

- Kate O'Flaherty, Wired Magazine

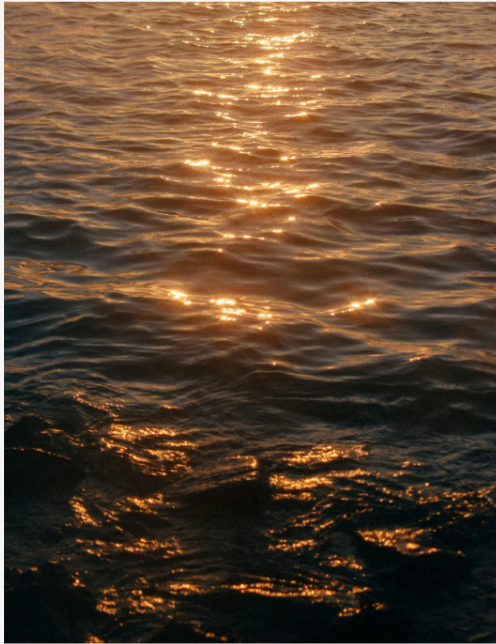

Technology evolution requires a need for constant software updating. Wait too long to click the yes button, and your personal and business security is significantly threatened. How to keep up? This recent Wired Magazine article lights the way by summarizing the most important, newly released updates from a wide variety of software systems commonly used today. Plus, important security patches from Apple, VMWare, Cisco, Zimbra, SAP, and Oracle.

A Different Hue

Say goodbye to colorful graphic design as we know it...

The well-known numbers that provide color and life to design, will soon be no more. At least without paying.

Starting this month, Photoshop users will now have to pay a subscription fee to utilize Pantone colors and matching.

Little Island of Ponza

Dream of yourself taking a step back in time to Italy's Golden Age.

Dine, stargaze, and take in the views evoking the same feelings that ancient Greek and Etruscan natives felt.

With jaw-dropping views and tiny sea-sprayed towns, this is the ultimate 2023 inspiration.

2071

Experience a predicted look at Earth in 2071.

Welcome to the Journey of the Pioneers exhibit at Museum of the Future. Set in the heart of Dubai, the world's leading city for innovation, we find a thought-provoking installation created by German Studio Atelier Brueckner. This exhibit offers an investigative outlook of years ahead for all eyes to see. From regenerative ecosystems to space travel, and the future of wellness rituals, Journey of the Pioneers questions life as we know it.

Architecture Abroad

The Middle East has been on the mind of many designers, architects, and engineers from all corners of the world. Sleek futuristic design set against the backdrop of a desolate desert landscape provides new inspiration and ingenuity in a seemingly jaded world. Whether we're building new islands from desert sand, or contributing to high-speed cities in Saudi Arabia or the U.A.E. - ingenuity of next-level design is what's next.

The T List

Campos Polanco, a casually elegant 12-suite residence and social gathering house, debuts as a forerunner for creating an encapsulating space fit for showcasing fine Mexican art and distinct architecture. Taking inspiration from the stunning work of local artists, the residence blurs the line between a curated art gallery and a social gathering and living space.

The Madison Melle Agency is proud to have secured Campos Polanco a spot on the highly sought-after T List by The New York Times.
